

2026 Impact Report — What the Numbers Say

The report is getting opened, but most readers are deciding fast: the Welcome Letter absorbs nearly all first clicks and loses many before they reach the impact content. The strongest signal sits with a small group of known constituents who returned, read deeply, and clicked intent links.

What Stood Out

- The first section is doing too much gatekeeping: 192 of 200 openers started with the Welcome Letter, and 130 dropped there. That means many readers never reached the donor-facing proof points in “Your Gift in Action” or “Programs & Impact.”
- Readers who got past the opening tended to follow the intended story arc, but the next major leak came at “Programs & Impact,” where 20 of 46 dropped at step 3. That section may be landing as dense or late, even though it is likely one of the pages donors came to see.
- Engagement is broad but shallow: 249 views translated into just ~2 sections per session, with an estimated 131 seconds per session and 16 seconds per section. People are sampling rather than settling in.
- Constituent engagement is much more concentrated than general traffic: 8 of 30 identified constituents returned, and all 8 carry 3-star engagement. The best prospects are not just reading; several clicked donate or downloaded the PDF.

Worth a Follow-Up

- Saoirse Brennan — returned, read 100%, and clicked both the donation link and PDF.
- Mateo Salinas — returned, read 88%, and clicked the donation link.
- Henry Aldridge — returned, read 75%, and clicked the donation link.

Next Time

- Move “Your Gift in Action” or a short impact snapshot ahead of the Welcome Letter, since 130 readers dropped before reaching the proof of impact.
- Tighten “Programs & Impact” into fewer, more scannable beats or split it with a visual break; losing 20 of 46 there suggests readers need a clearer path through the substance.
- Send personal follow-up to the 3-star returners before a broad resend; the best next gifts are more likely inside that 8-person group than in the general view count.
